

Appendix A: Strategic Planning Preparation

The College of Engineering strategic plan included input from over 60 faculty, multiple staff, students, advisory board members, and members of the community. Input was solicited on several occasions through broad requests, focus groups, department meetings, and committee meetings.

The College of Engineering is particularly grateful to the following individuals who provided leadership for sections of the strategic plan. Many others participated in committees and volunteered their time to develop this plan.

- ✘ Joanna Holliday and Lana Hoff, who made extraordinary contributions through the development of the Decadal Study,
- ✘ Chriselda Engel for leading the undergraduate recruitment committee,
- ✘ Marvin Criswell and Tom Siller for their contributions related to assessment and accreditation,
- ✘ Tom Siller for preparation and development of our internationalization initiative and our program to prepare middle and high school teachers,
- ✘ Tom Siller and Mark Ritschard for their work to develop the new academic village,
- ✘ Wade Troxell and Kathleen Seligmann for their leadership of our new economic development and workforce development initiatives,
- ✘ Shannon Davis, Kathleen Seligmann, and Roxanne Fry for their work to create a COE development and advancement plan,
- ✘ Mark Ritschard for his work to create an IT and web plan for the College of Engineering,
- ✘ Jupe Herrick for his excellent work in developing a plan to nurture our staff,
- ✘ Ken Streeb for quickly and accurately providing data needed for this report, and
- ✘ The COE Executive Committee for their contributions to the development of the College's first draft of a set of values, mission, and vision, the graduate recruitment plan, and our strategic plan for research and scholarship. I am also grateful to this group for their many contributions and critical review. This group includes: Tony Maciejewski, Allan Kirkpatrick, Luis Garcia, Ted Watson, Steve Rutledge, Tom Vonderhaar, Wade Troxell, Tom Siller, and Jupe Herrick.

Thanks to all of you,
